Over the past two weeks, there were two ten-year records broken for wildfire starts for July 26 to Aug 1:

- More lightning-caused fires (168)
- Fewer human-caused fires (22)

- Fire Restrictions have been downgraded in the central and southwest portions of the state.
- Additional restrictions will be reduced this weekend.
- August is typically a busy month for wildfires, so "FireSense" is just as important.
- With cooler temperatures, campfires will be on the increase, put out all campfires completely before leaving.

Outlook:

- Fire danger has diminished due to widespread rain, but warmer, drier weather expected throughout Utah over the next several weeks.
- Rainfall will diminish into August and fire danger will increase in most of Utah.
- Southern Utah ERC percentiles improving with precipitation, but they are trending back upwards.

You know the fire drill.
Douse your campfire.
